America's First "Dry" Air Navy

Five Coast Guard Air Bases Planned Along Atlantic Coast—Board Will Make Survey of Rum Smuggling Along Atlantic.

Washington, March 9.—The organization of America's first prohibition air service began today.

Five coast guard air bases will be established along the Atlantic coast from New England to Florida, each equipped with a crew of several men and one plane.

Officials said that while the service is specifically aimed at law enforcement, it will be of great value in navigation protection as well.

Congress has appropriated $150,000 to form the nucleus of the dry "air navy."

Admiral F. C. Billiard, commandant, appointed a board today to map out an air campaign. The board, which will make a survey of the rum smuggling situation along the Atlantic Coast for the purpose of recommending the most strategic locations for air bases, consists of the following officers:

Lieut. Commander S. S. Yeandle, chief tactician in the government's naval war against rum runners; Lieut. Commander C. C. Von Paulson, head of the coast guard base at Gloucester, Mass.; Lieut. Commander S. V. Parker, former commander of the naval air station at Rockaway, N. Y., and Lieut. Commander E. F. Stone, who piloted the NC-4 in the first flight across the Atlantic.

The commission has been instructed by Billiard to convene within the next week. Billiard hopes to expedite the coastwise survey in order that the new service may be put into action before summer.

Reports to the coast guard indicate a possible re-mobilization of the rum row off New York and additional activities from rum smugglers operating from islands off the Florida coast. The dry air service is expected to be ready from the rum drive.

Members of the commission said that for the present air bases will be located at the coast guard's patrol boat concentration points. Aircraft will operate in conjunction with cutter fleets.

If the service proves a success congress next year will be asked for another appropriation and bases will be placed on the Gulf Coast, Pacific and the Great Lakes. Officials anticipated that one plane would cover more territory in a day than the entire cutter fleet in a week.

Special Barge Canal Message

Sent To Legislature By Governor Smith—Main Points In Greene's Report Advocated By Governor.

Albany, N. Y., March 9.—Members of the legislature today had before them a special message from Governor Smith urging the barge canal be transferred to the federal government to be used as an All-American Ship Canal from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean, by way of Hudson River.

The governor wrote his message in transmitting to the lawmakers a report on the barge canal prepared by Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, state commissioner of public works.

Colonel Greene was in Washington today representing Governor Smith at the hearing before the river and harbor board of the war department on the proposed All-American Ship Canal across New York State.

In sending Colonel Greene's report to the legislature, the governor wrote:

"I am in full accord with the main points advocated in the report, namely:

"That a ship canal connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic is inevitable.

"That the best location for such a canal is the so-called American route from Lake Ontario at Oswego to the Hudson River at Albany by way of the Mohawk valley.

"That as the major part of the business on such canal will be interstate, it should be built and operated by the federal government."

The All-American Canal would be a contribution to the benefit of the whole nation, the governor told the lawmakers. He added:

"If there were economic reasons why the federal government should connect Maryland and Delaware by a ship canal, there is greater necessity to provide a lakes to ocean waterway for the states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and New York. All these states would benefit directly by the American Canal.

$75 Verdict for Assault a Lesson

Plaintiff Asked Between $50 and $100 as Public Disapproval of Taking Law Into One's Own Hands.

By returning a verdict for plaintiff, Henry C. Burger, in his suit for assault against Ernest Simpson of Pataukunk, a jury in the Supreme court on Monday afternoon put its stamp of disapproval on the practice of taking the law in one's hands instead of appealing to a court of justice. Plaintiff alleged that on July 9, 1925, Ernest Simpson, son of Justice of the Peace Jeremiah Simpson, struck him on the head following a heated conversation between Burger and the Simpsons. Plaintiff claimed that there was no provocation for the blow although he and the defendant both testified that Burger had called him a "slacker" and otherwise provoked him prior to the assault. Defendant admitted he had struck Burger.

The jury was out but a few minutes when it arrived at a verdict in the sum of $75 for plaintiff against the defendant.

In summing up the case to the jury Judge Cunningham, who appeared for the plaintiff, stated that it was not the intention of the plaintiff to seek a big money verdict. He simply wanted a verdict of from $50 to $100 to show that the practice of taking the law in one's hands was not sanctioned by the courts.

Simpson testified that he had heard the argument going on between his father and Mr. Burger and had come and remonstrated. He said that Burger called him a slacker and taunted him and that he had offered to fight to show he was no slacker. As he passed the car in which Burger was, a final taunt caused him to slap Burger. The blow was slight and no injury done.

Senate Passes Exemption Bill Of Senator Bouton

Albany, N. Y., March 9.—Without a dissenting vote, the senate today passed the Bouton Bill increasing exemptions under the state income tax law to make them conform with the federal law.

Under the measure exemptions for married men will be raised from $2,500 to $3,500 and for unmarried men from $1,000 to $1,500. The bill is expected to be passed in the assembly next week.

Senator Bouton, Republican, of Delaware, sponsor, estimated 250,000 persons would benefit under his measure. It would reduce the money collected by the state through the income tax by about $4,000,000.

Governor's Smith's proposal to reduce the income tax 25 per cent also will be put through by the Republican leaders. If the state's financial condition will permit there will be a slight reduction in the direct tax on real estate.

Solving Murder Of Battling Siki

New York, March 9.—Solution of the mysterious murder of Louis Phal, "Battling Siki," the Senegalese pugilist who was shot and killed on December 15, is imminent, police declared today.

Martin Maroney, 18, was arrested today and charged with homicide in connection with the case.

Two other men, known to the police are sought.

Maroney had been trailed through the dives of hell's kitchen for weeks. It was while walking in the street in this part of the west side, that Siki was slain.

Maroney denied knowledge of the actual shooting of Siki but admitted he witnessed a brawl in which Siki hurled a chair at three white men in a restaurant at Ninth avenue and Fortieth street, a few hours before the killing.

Maroney first came under suspicion when detectives overheard him discussing the murder over the telephone.

Maroney told police he had seen Siki in a cafe the morning he was slain. He said Siki was intoxicated and began abusing those in the restaurant. A fight followed, in which Siki hurled a chair. Three white men were involved in the fight, Maroney said. Siki was taken out of the place by two negro friends.

A short time later, Maroney said, he heard a shot. Siki had been killed.

Boys Rob Mail Boxes of Mail

Find Key to Mail Box in Strand Post Office and Open Box and Extract Mail—Then Return Checks to Ones Intended For and Get Reward.

John Brodhead, 12 years old, of 17 West Strand, and Alexander Csissics, 12 years old, of 11 Broadway, were arrested Monday evening by Policeman Ray Saehloff and Night Watchman Charles Messinger on a serious charge of stealing mail from the branch post office building on West Strand. This is a violation of the federal laws as well as state laws. They were later paroled in the custody of their parents and this morning the police department turned them over to children's court for arraignment before Judge Joseph M. Fowler.

From what the police could learn the boys had found a key to one of the lock mail boxes in the lobby of the station and on Sunday they opened one of the lock mail boxes and extracted several letters. Opening the letters, they found a check drawn to the order of Fitzpatrick & Draper, the cigar manufacturers on Mill street, and on Monday returned the check to the office of that concern, stating they had found it on the sidewalk at Strand and Broadway. They were rewarded with 25 cents for their "honesty."

Ate Cream Cone And Drove Auto

But Results Were Disastrous to Sol Rubin Whose Collision With Another Automobile Resulted in Two Lawsuit in the Supreme Court.

Before Judge Staley and a jury in the supreme court Monday afternoon, two negligence actions were take up for trial. Both grew out of the same automobile accident and were tried together.

It is alleged that on August 10, 1924, while the plaintiff, Violet Bleier, was driving a Ford sedan along the Ashokan boulevard near Winchell's store, her car and the car of the defendant collided and that her car was overturned and she was injured. The car was wrecked. In the car were her father, mother and her brother. She was operating the car.

She testified that Rubin in a Chevrolet car was coming east over the road at about 40 miles an hour. He was driving with one hand and was eating an ice cream cone from the other hand. He attempted to pass another car going in the same direction and as he turned out to pass the car he collided with her car. When her car was overturned she was pinned underneath and gasoline from the tank ran down her back and was ignited, burning her back severely. She was confined to the Kingston City Hospital for about a week and since the accident has been nervous and unable to work. She sued to recover $5,000. She claims she has been permanently injured.

The defendant on the other hand contends that he was not negligent in any way but that the accident was caused solely through the negligence of Miss Bleier and the manner in which she operated her car. Some time after the accident Rubin was arrested and convicted of reckless driving at the time of the collision.

Tax Extension Time Not General

No general extension of time for the filing of New York state income tax returns due April 15 has been granted.

This announcement is made by the state tax commission owing to the confusion which apparently exists as the result of the recent general extension of time for filing returns granted by the United States commissioner of internal revenue. Several persons arranging for foreign trips have inquired as to whether the sixty day extension granted to Federal returns also covers their state returns. This extension issued by the United States government affects only returns due to the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Director Thomas M. Lynch, of the state income tax bureau, suggests that persons subject to the New York tax, who desire extensions beyond April 15 for the filing of their 1925 returns, should make these requests as promptly as possible.

"It is always the experience of the bureau," he said, "that hundreds of taxpayers wait until the last few days of the collection period before applying for these extensions. Mail received at the bureau during this period is unusually large and the risk of loss of an application is greater than if the request were made earlier in the collection period."

Mr. Lynch further stated that such applications should have the Christian or given name of the taxpayer fully spelled out and should state the residence address, the reasons for an extension and the particular period of additional time desired.

Smith Opposes Further Probe

Governor Smith Can See No Good in Further Investigation of Labor Legislation—Obligations Not Fulfilled, Says State Federation of Labor.

Albany, N. Y., March 9.—The plan of the Republican leaders of the legislature to sidetrack virtually all labor legislation at the present session, by providing for an investigation of these measures, is strongly opposed by Governor Smith.

In transmitting to the lawmakers today a copy of a letter he received recently from the State Federation of Labor protesting against the proposed investigation, the governor wrote:

"No good that I am able to see can grow out of any further legislative investigation of these questions. All the facts connected with them are readily ascertainable at a public hearing, through agencies of the state already organized and equipped to study these problems."

A resolution sponsored by Senator Knight, C. O. P., leader of the upper house, providing for the investigation of labor legislation, has been adopted by the senate.

Democratic leaders have charged the real purpose behind the investigation is to sidetrack the bill sponsored by Senator Mastick and Assemblyman Shonk, Westchester Republicans, providing a 48 hour working week for women and children in industry. Mastick and Shonk have served notice on the leaders of their party they will continue to fight for their bill.

In a letter to the governor, which he sent to the lawmakers, the State Federation of Labor pointed out that both the Republican and Democratic state platforms of two years ago endorsed the principle of the 48 hour week.

"These plainly worded obligations have not been fulfilled by the legislatures of 1925 and 1926," said the letter.

"On the contrary, having last year frustrated all efforts at redemption of these platform covenants with the people, it is now deliberately planned to escape the issues by creating a commission to sit until 1927 to inquire into the need for the labor legislation."

The letter also declared both parties favored many important changes in the Workmen's Compensation Law, but that the Republicans have refused to pass the necessary legislation. The letter added:

"We were furnished a sample of this form of inquiry and its purpose last year when a joint legislative committee was appointed, with Senator Whitley of Rochester as chairman, to inquire into the causes of delay in payment of workmen's compensation claims. This commission held inquiries in several cities, cost $2,500, and reported seven bills for enactment by the legislature. Only one of these bills was enacted as reported."

Think Saugerties Man Murdered In New York

Wealthy Descendant of President Martin Van Buren Had Been Living at Exchange Hotel Until Last Week When He Went to New York—Mystery Surrounds His Death.

New York, March 9.—Belated investigation by police was under way today into the mysterious death of Martin Van Buren Wilcoxsen, 56, wealthy New York sportsman, and descendant of President Martin Van Buren.

Relatives believe Wilcoxsen was robbed and murdered.

He was taken to a hospital last Wednesday by police after a taxicab driver had found him unconscious in his cab. Wilcoxsen had entered the cab with another man who alighted shortly after, the taxi driver said.

Wilcoxsen died Friday, and a post-mortem examination revealed a severe fracture of the skull. When first taken to the hospital, he was treated for alcoholism, and relatives assert it was not until they had insisted, that examination was made.

Efforts to interest police in the case failed until last night. His son, Frank Wilcoxsen, instructor at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, said:

"My father usually carried a large amount of money in his pockets. When he was taken to the hospital, he was penniless."

In 1915, Wilcoxsen inherited $300,000 from an aunt, and previously had inherited $1,000,000 from estates of relatives, his widow said.

Lived at Saugerties.

According to the dead man's wife, he had spent the last five months at Saugerties, having gone there on a hunting trip.

According to information reaching The Freeman from Saugerties, Mr. Wilcoxsen was well known there and was called "The Duke." He left there early last week to go to New York. He met with the assault or accident which resulted fatally on Wednesday.

For many years Mr. Wilcoxsen lived at Catskill, where he owned a large mansion and entertained extensively. At times he had twenty servants. It is believed that he came into possession of another fortune a short time ago, after which he is said to have sold his Catskill property and shortly afterward went to Saugerties, making his home at the Exchange Hotel.

His widow, Mrs. Yvette de Von Wilcoxsen, lives at 71 West Sixty-eighth street, New York city says that although the New York city police were aware that he had come to his injury under mysterious circumstances, not a move had been made by them to establish whether he had met with foul play or has been run down by an automobile.

Chauffeur Gave Wrong Name.

It developed that Mr. Wilcoxsen, who was unconscious and dying at the time, had been brought to the station in a taxicab by a chauffeur, who, the police at the station said, gave a fictitious address.

The chauffeur, who had given the police the name Max Baer, said that after the disappearance of the first passenger he noticed that his second fare was slumped in a corner of the car. Unable to arouse him, he drove to the station, he said.

Unidentified 24 Hours.

Mr. Wilcoxsen said Monday evening that her husband was permitted to lie for almost twenty-four hours in a ward in Harlem Hospital without either the police or the hospital authorities altering the record, so that he was an unidentified patient. She said that the police at the West 100th Street station, when her husband was taken there Wednesday morning, found a slip of paper on him revealing his name and the address 231 West Eighty-fifth street, which is a boarding house conducted by James Barry, at which Mr. Wilcoxsen occasionally stopped for a day or two when in the city. Much of the time he was away travelling.

In the forenoon of Wednesday, the widow and the Barrys, said a message to the effect that Mr. Wilcoxsen was a patient in the hospital was sent to Mr. Barry. Mrs. Barry went to the hospital, her husband said, but when she asked to see Mr Wilcoxsen she was told that no such patient was there.

Mrs. Barry stayed at the hospital for hours, however, insisting that Mr. Wilcoxsen must be there, because the police had notified her, but no effort was made by anybody at the hospital to communicate with the police, it was said. Eventually Mrs. Barry was permitted to survey the patients in the wards, Mr Barry said, and found Mr. Wilcoxsen being unconscious in a ward with the word "unidentified" on a card. She told her husband that he identified the dying man for the hospital authorities, but Mrs Wilcoxsen said that not by the hospital officials but the police, informed her about the removal of [illegible] to the hospital.

Wife Finally Informed.

Mrs. Barry, it developed, went to the Presbyterian Hospital, where she knew Dr. de Von, brother of Mrs. Wilcoxsen was a patient with pleurisy [illegible]. She told Dr. de Von's sister that she believed Mr. Wilcoxsen [illegible] in the Harlem Hospital [illegible] as the hospital authorities had reported to her and explained that she had come to the Presbyterian Hospital to learn where she could get in touch

Clandestine Marriages Fail

Startling Results of a Study of Divorce and Marriage Ratios Based on Questionnaires Answered by Pastors of United Lutheran Church in America.

New York, March 9 Although the ratio of divorce to marriage in the United States is 1 to 7, the ratio of divorces to marriages performed by Lutheran clergymen throughout the country during the past decade or two is 1 to 60, says the Rev Dr. Nathan E. Melhorn, editor of the Lutheran in the current issue Dr. Melhorn's statement is the result of the first 527 replies to a questionnaire mailed recently by that publication to 2,500 pastors of the United Lutheran Church in America, the largest general body of Lutherans in the United States and Canada.

Dr Melhorn says: "527 responses show 68,559 marriages performed. Divorces reported as known total 1,073. About one-fourth of those replying warn us that their figures on divorces are inaccurate The majority of those who thus 'shade' their data remark that they do not know what became of all the couples they married, they also say, 'Many came to us whom we did not know at all.' This last observation is most common in urban pastorates It also appears from states where licenses to marry are more easily obtained. Michigan couples, for example, cross to Ohio, and Kentucky lovers incline to patronize Indiana."

Calling attention to the tendency toward elopement and "clandestine marriages" before justices of the peace and pastors "unknown to either bride or groom," Dr Melhorn quotes one pastor as saying: "I recall a number of members who ran off and were married and are now divorced. But only three of the 214 couples married by me have been divorced." Another pastor reported less than 40 divorces out of more than 1,000 weddings performed, and added: "Some time ago I read in a local paper than a Blanktown alderman officiated at more than 2,000 weddings in less than 30 years, say 20 years. Most of them I suppose get married to evade prison confinement. Afterwards the divorces came. And there are thousands of aldermen doing the same thing."

Placing the blame and credit for the high ratio in the country at large and the low ratio in the Lutheran Church, Dr. Melhorn continues: "This article does not propose to enter into the right of parties legally divorced for infidelity and malicious desertion to remarry. That separations are justified on the above grounds is admitted even by the Catholic Church. But the data gathered does seem to indicate that where young people's entrance into matrimony is by way of meeting each other on such decent and orderly occasions as the church furnishes, and when their knowledge of the marriage covenant has been gained in catechetical classes and among religious folk, they generally stay married. They do not go to the divorce courts except for due cause.

"The great bulk of the unhappy partners in wedlock either never went to a clergyman or else they were strangers to the minister that married them. One need not blame the clergyman who officiates at such contracts. The blame rests on the bride and bridegroom whose previous life or whose desire to wed does not involve going to a pastor whom one or both know. They feel no ties of residence in the community in which they live. All they want is to comply with the law and custom. They drive up to a convenient parsonage or magistrate's office, take the vows prescribed for a marital partnership and the ndrive away. Of them the pastor never hears again. Hence to my questionnaire he replies, 'Of those I know, only very few have been divorced.'

"Would you not think young girls would hesitate to take a solemn vow in a way practically clandestine? Might not a young man be a bit uneasy when a girl cannot direct him to engage 'her pastor' to join them in marriage? What cause have these wanderers to think that either has considered the obligations of matrimony when a roadside incident is the scene of a contract in which each promises to abide 'until death do us part'

"Is it rather odd that fathers and mothers are so indifferent to the environment in which their sons and daughters find mates for themselves? If parents are really eager to insure happiness to our youth, might we not expect them to urge Church and Sunday school rather than dance hall and bathing beaches for a connection so vital to the future welfare of their progeny? Even selfish wisdom would prescribe this, for divorce often affects the parents of the separated man and woman quite as seriously as it does the parties to the divorce. That church records do not show the multitude of divorces is indeed true, but there is a great deal of significance in the fact that four-fifths of these wrecks of hope for happiness are unknown to clergymen. It is the civil marriage and the clandestine ceremony that do not bind. Our figures show beyond doubt that the terrible prevalence of divorce is in circles indifferent to religion The five to one ratio is not sustained among couples who come to a pastor they know, and thus testify to an environment where the meaning of marital fidelity has been learned.

"The figures will probably startle a good many clergymen. The matrimonial wrecks are obviously most largely prevalent among the couples who are unprepared to execute a solemn covenant in the name of Almighty God and keep it by His grace. There is quite too much ignorance about marriage among us. We should do more preaching and teaching about it; that is patent; and ministers should use the press as well as the pulpits."

Food of Butterflies

Butterflies feed on the nectar of flowers and the sap of trees and plants. The various flowers, etc., vary with those found in a locality. All adult bees feed on saccharine juices, particularly the nectar of flowers. It is the habit of bees to devote their searching to a single sort of flower as long as it serves their purpose, each individual visiting blossom after blossom of that kind, instead of searching flowers indiscriminately. This varies with the locality.

Pugnacious Crayfish

Crayfish are so pugnacious that if two of them are put in the same crate or open pen one will kill the other, or, like the farmer's dog, die barking at the hole. That is why, when the University of Washington shipped a dozen rare specimens from its aquarium in Seattle to the fish pool in New York, the shippers wound up each crayfish in yards of wet cheesecloth. The consignment came through whole and healthy.—Youth's Companion.

Dairymen Will Meet at Accord

Dairymen in the Rondout valley will be gratified to learn that a meeting of interest to all milk producers in the county will be held at the Accord M. E. Hall on Thursday evening, March 11 at 8 o'clock. Through efforts of the Farm Bureau Professor John H. Barron of Cornell has been secured as principal speaker of the evening. His topic for discussion will be "How can we in the dairy business successfully meet outside competition." Professor Barron will not attack his subject from the "Freight differential, board of health requirement standpoint." In his opinion competition in the dairy business can best be met through improved methods of feeding, which means better roughage fewer and better cows.

Coming at the time of the year when farmers are planning spring work this discussion of the value of different crops such as oats, peas and barley, oats and barley, clover hay, alfalfa hay, timothy hay showing the relative merits of each for milk production will be a helpful guide in laying out a cropping scheme for the season. In the opinion of men at the head of the dairy industry there is not now and never will be a place in the business for inefficient producers. The strings are slowly tightening, the survival of the fittest will be more than ever true. The fittest will be the man with good home grown roughage and home grown grains of the proper kind.

Following Professor Barron's talk a round table discussion of problems relating to the dairy industry will be opened up. Every man interested in keeping Ulster county's dairy business in the foreground should attend this meeting.

Farm Bureau At New Paltz

Farm and Home Bureau members and friends are making extensive plans for an all day extension meeting to be held in the Grange Hall at New Paltz on Thursday, March 11, starting at 10:30 a. m.

The committee have made arrangements to have as speaker, Professor John H. Barron, a specialist on growing clover, alfalfa and all legumes, who will give one of his usually valuable talks covering the growth and value of the above crops. At this time when dairymen are searching for ways and means to combat western milk competition, and discussion of subjects pertaining to cheaper milk production will be gladly received by all dairymen.

The acreage of alfalfa has been gradually increasing for the past several years not only in Ulster county but throughout the state. Professor Barron is a strong advocate for this crop wherever it can be grown. He will have some very important points to bring out in connection with getting a good stand established.

As a part of the Home Bureau nutrition project the Home Bureau members will serve a community lunch to all who attend. Following the meal Home Bureau Manager Evelyn Nance will give a talk on the subject "Foods Make a Difference" using a set of illustrated slides to bring out important features in her discussion. Both men and women will get valuable hints from this part of the program.

At the morning session F. M. Wigsten, manager of the farm department, will present some very interesting facts and figures on the "Farm Credit Situation." Wigsten promises to open the eyes of some farmers on this proposition, showing that the man who pays cash for his goods is not getting a fair shake in many cases, while the "Charge it man," is getting away with all kinds of things.

All in all the New Paltz committee feel they have a well balanced and valuable program to be useful and instructive to all members and friends who will attend. They announce that all are welcome and cordially invited.

Benedictine Ball Patrons Respond

Very gratifying reports are coming from the ticket committee in charge of the patron list for the annual Benedictine ball, which will be held in the New York state armory Easter Monday night, April 5, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Miss Mary McGill is the very efficient chairman of the ticket committee and she and her assistants are finding it a pleasant task to enroll patrons of former years and add new names to the ever growing list. The people of Kingston and vicinity recognize the worthiness of the cause and seem glad to answer the call of the ticket committee and do their yearly bit in this way.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has conducted a ball once a year for nearly twenty years for the purpose of raising money for the hospital, one year being excepted, that of 1919, when the Community Chest included the funds usually secured at such entertainments. It is the only time in the year when the auxiliary solicits the aid of the general public in the work it is doing, and the healthy growth of the ball year by year, from the small beginning of twenty years ago to the outstanding success of later years, gives evidence of the support that is always forthcoming The generous response that the ticket committee is meeting each day is indicative of the high regard the people of Ulster county have for the Benedictine Hospital and their interest in the activities of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

The general chairman of the ball is the president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Joan Dwyer Goldrick, who so successfully conducted last year's ball and who is exerting every effort to make this ball another brilliant affair.

Assisting Miss McGill on the ticket committee are the following ladies: Mrs. Nellie Devine, Mrs. Frank Disch, Mrs. Joan D. Goldrick, Mrs. Mary Haley, Mrs. John Herrick, Miss Cella Hussey, Mrs. H. D. Johnson, Mrs. Edward J. Kelley, Mrs. John F. Larkin, Mrs. Frank L. Meagher, Mrs. H. F. Meinhardt, Mrs. N. D. J. Murphy, Mrs. Daniel J Murphy, Miss Marie Murphy, Mrs Mark O'Meara, Miss Eleanor C. Rosekrans, Mrs. Edgar T. Shultis, Mrs. H. L. Van Norstrand and Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer of Woodstock.

These ladies are endeavoring to interview all the patrons of former balls and are adding many new names to the list this year. Anyone not yet interviewed and who desires to become a patron may telephone any member of this committee and the request for tickets will be taken care of promptly.

MEETINGS AT ALBANY AVENUE CHURCH

A most inspiring service was held at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church last evening when the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart took charge of the evangelistic campaign that is to be conducted for one week by this church. Mr. Stewart's singing was unusually impressive, and his opening message was deeply heart-searching yet filled with a kindly humor that held the constant attention of all who were present. There was not a dull moment in the whole meeting, and every one received fresh inspiration for rendering a larger and better service. These meetings are different from the ordinary evangelistic service, and have a freshness and interest all their own.

This afternoon at 3:45 o'clock Mr. Stewart speaks to the boys and girls, and those who are present will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing the singing brush. The meeting tonight will be at half past seven, and Mr. Stewart will both sing and speak, his topic being "What is the Gospel?" Mr. Stewart also leads the congregational singing, as he is a conductor of more than ordinary skill, having had large experience not only in revival meetings but in sunday conventions. After Wednesday night the meetings will be only for the workers until Sunday, when everybody will be welcome at all services.

munication with Mrs. Wilcoxsen, who was Wilcoxsen's second wife.

The nurse communicated with Mrs. de Von, with whom Mrs. Wilcoxsen is stopping at the West Sixty-eighth street address. Mrs. Wilcoxsen collapsed when she heard of her husband's plight, and at 12 o'clock that night, her sister-in-law, Mrs. de Von, hurried to Harlem Hospital in a taxicab. She was told that no patient named Wilcoxsen was at the hospital she said, despite the fact that Mrs. Barry had reported that she had told them the identity of the "unidentified" patient. On her insistance, Mrs. de Von was permitted to go through the wards and found Mr Wilcoxsen unconscious in one of the cots

Had Fortune of Over Million.

Mrs. Wilcoxsen said that her husband spent about five months at Saugerties, on a hunting trip up to the latter part of February, when he returned to New York. She was out of town at the time and she understood that her husband stopped a few days at the boarding house conducted by Dr. Barry in West Eighty-fifth street. Mr. Barry said that Mr. Wilcoxsen called on him on the afternoon of the day he received his injury and left at about 6 o'clock. He had known Mr. Wilcoxsen for about five years, he said.

Mrs. Wilcoxsen said that her husband was born at Florence, Italy, in 1870, and that his mother was a daughter of Nathanial Niles of Vermont, former American Minister to Italy and Austrina. A twin sister of his mother, Mrs. Fred Badeau, widow of General Adam Badeau, aid to General Sherman in the Civil War, left her husband about $200,000 and 1915. Mrs. Wilcoxsen added. He previously had received shares in estates from other relatives which totaled more than $1,000,000, she said, but that he had spent money lavishly.

They were married in 1917, Mrs. Wilcoxsen said. A few years after her husband had given a large sum in cash for a mortgage on the buildings of Columbus avenue and Sixty-sixth street, occupied by Healy's restaurant at the time. In 1923, she added, her husband, while they were stopping at New Rochelle, bought the thirty-foot racing sloop Pirate, which had been built before the war by J. P. Morgan. On March 12, 1925, Mr. Morgan bought the sloop back for sentimental reasons.

Saturday afternoon the Millermen are scheduled to play in Newark, N. J., where they will meet the S. A. team of that city which is the recognized champion of the State of New Jersey.

Also on the following Monday evening the local Army team will meet the Nyack Church Academy quintet, a team which finished second in the INSO League race. In the last contest the Iona and the second team of the down-river squad but this second contest Captain Miller has requested that his team be matched against the Newburgh regulars.

A DISAPPOINTING VICTORY.

In the utterances of formerly active as well as renowned feminists there is noticeable either manifest effort to attract attention or indirect confession of dissatisfaction in a victory that has failed to meet expectations. Achievement is far from being what was counted on. Feminists even seem to be losing the prominence they enjoyed in the old days of the continuing fight for the suffrage. Instead of spectacular triumph, victory and peace have brought a relative and unwelcome obscurity. Doubtless it is this, at least in part, that has tempted Rebecca West into the limelight inviting announcement that nature designed men to be menials and servants, leaving the important tasks of life to women.

Jane Addams, less sensational and more level-headed, is naturally inclined to take issue with so radical a view—as well as nothing loath to take advantage of none too frequent opportunity to come forward. She frankly admits that "up to this time men have furnished the chief geniuses," but contends that "genius is not a thing of sex," and falls back on the well-worn plea that, anyhow, "women have not had a fair chance." As if realizing that they now have all the "chance" that there is—at least in the case of unhampered spinsters—she offers the not entirely convincing excuse for the multitudes of non-voting women that it takes a long time to reach an adequate consciousness of civic duties when the right to perform them has been denied for so many generations, possibly forgetting that in another place she speaks of the thoroughness with which American women had been prepared for the exercise of the franchise. It begins to look as if the great victory has been as great a disappointment to its winners.

AN UNGALLANT CENTENARIAN.

In no few cases centenarians have been the despair of reformers by boasting of their recklessness in both eating and drinking. One is now heard from who will further offend by exhibiting something like pride in his own lack of gallantry. He is William Smith of Dromore, County Down, Ireland. His claim to have been born January 3, 1801, is actually said to be corroborated by the official records. If you want to live until you are 125 years old, he is quoted, "never marry before you are 60; eat a lot, but only plain foods; drink a little alcohol daily; don't rise too early; don't wear any night clothes, and above all don't worry."

Not content with this recipe, so startling in some of its items, he goes on to say that he "drank as much as any ten men in County Down," and to give utterance to this ungallant warning: "Ye don't know how hard women are to please. I tell ye, let them do what they want, for they'll do it anyhow." Doubtless there are other men who have reached such conclusions before they were as well seasoned and tough as this ancient Billy Smith, but usually they are gallant enough—sometimes prudent enough—to keep their convictions to themselves.

Tough is undoubtedly the proper adjective to employ in connection with the old man of Dromore and of not a few other centenarians, for the tale of their eating and drinking is one to affright the average aging man of our times.

ATTACK ON RURAL COUNTIES.

No time was required for up-state papers to say what they thought of the Downing-Hoch-Tammany proposal to place the entire state government under the direction of Tammany. This would be done by first getting control of the legislature, where the laws are made, after which the rest would be easy. The idea was to gerrymander the state by making the population of each assembly district about 65,000. Based on the census of 1925 this would take individual representation away from thirty-five up-state counties and give Greater New York seventy-two of the one hundred and fifty members of assembly.

This was not all it would do for it would eliminate protection which up-state has against New York city since gaining control of the state senate. No one county now can have more than one-third of the senators and no adjoining counties, such as New York and Kings, can have more than one-half. This Tammany would change by eliminating "separated by public waters, which would almost assure Greater New York dominance in the upper house.

The resolution shows that Tammany will never let up on its ambition to grab the legislature.

SHAPE OF BODY IN MENTAL AILMENTS.

A European scientist who specializes in mental ailments, has been telling his colleagues that the head, the brain, is not the only part of the body that is now taken into consideration in examining patients with mental trouble.

The effect that the ductless glands have upon the body must now be considered, as the secretions of these glands affect the size and shape of the body itself, aside from their effects upon various internal organs.

He speaks of the three types of body formation which embrace all mental cases.

First, there is what he calls the "slender" type, with small head, slender neck, and sunken chest.

Then the athletic type with broad chest, and marked muscular development.

And finally the "thick set" type, with compact body build, short legs, protruding abdomen, head forward, rounded back, and usually with a heavy beard.

The slender and athletic types if they become affected with mental trouble, present the same symptoms, because they have really the same temperament. When the ailment is pronounced or advanced in these two groups, it affects the intellectual centres, because feeling and thinking are disturbed.

These folk become self centred, and nothing else, nor no one else, really matters.

They do not wish to mix with others, and are despondent all the time. In health it is this type of individual that does real systematic and constructive thinking. In mental ill health, however, this intensive systematic thinking does not get him away from himself.

The thick set type, however, are not depressed always, only at times, and their intellectual centres are not much disturbed. When not in ill health mentaly they are the type who have usually more humor in their make up, but are not as systematic in their thinking as the other types.

Now this is all interesting because every one of us falls into one of these three types of body build. At least we resemble some one type closely.

Most of us will likely escape the mental trouble peculiar to our type of build, but the above information may be worth something to us, if we find that we are showing even slight indications of any of the symptoms above mentioned.

We should simply take hold of ourselves and preserve our mental health.

COUNTY ENDEAVORERS PLAN ACTIVITIES

William Shaw, LL. D., honorary secretary of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, speaking of Christian Endeavor says:

Its initials, C. E. have been interpreted to mean not only "Christian Endeavor," but also "Christ Enthroned" in the individual life, controlling its every expression, and "Christianity Extended" into all the world.

As honorary secretary of the World's Christian Endeavor Union I bring to you the greetings of more than four million Christian Endeavorers in eighty thousand societies in more than fourscore denominations and nations, and of more than fifteen million graduates during the past forty years.

They girdle the globe with a living chain of testimony, prayer, and service, binding it as with golden links to the throne of God.

The slogan for Ulster county is "A C. E. Society in Every Community. No Church Without a Young People's Society" and "A Delegation of 200 at the State Convention at Saratoga Springs July 1 to 5." This can be done and societies are planning now to put this over.

The following letter was received by the president of the Highland C. E. Society in reply to one sent after a radio meeting:

Miss Hope Persons,

My dear Miss Persons:

I thank you for your very gracious letter of January 21 with the signatures of the Christian Endeavorers of Highland, N. Y., who were listening in.

It is a great satisfaction to know that our conferences are really helpful. Cordially yours,

DANIEL A. POLING,
President World's C. E. Union.

Obnoxious Stamp Act Proposed by Lord Grenville, March 9, 1765.

Laws authorizing the use of stamps, stamped paper, or stamps on packages, bearing fixed rates for the stamps, for raising revenue, were introduced in England in the reign of William and Mary, from Holland. From that time until now the system has been a favorite one in England for raising revenue.

The British treasury had been exhausted not by defending the colonies in the Old French War, but by wars in Europe, and its coffers needed replenishing. A stamp duty had never been imposed on the American colonies, although several of them favored such a taxation for their own purposes.

In 1757 it was proposed to Sir William Pitt to tax the colonies; "I will never burn my fingers with an American stamp tax," he said. But George Grenville, Pitt's brother-in-law, bolder than his predecessors, as chancellor of the English exchequer, on March 9, 1765, proposed a bill for drawing a revenue from America by stamps.

No serious objection was expected. But the measure aroused great excitement in America as an attempt at taxation without representation.

A variety of local and illegal methods were adopted to oppose the operations of the act, which was to be effective November 1, 1765.

A Stamp Act Congress consisting of delegates from all the colonies except New Hampshire, Virginia, Georgia, and North Carolina, assembled in New York city, on Monday, October 7, 1765. The delegates from New York were Robert R. Livingston, John Cruger, Philip Livingston, William Bayard and Leonard Lispenard; Timothy Ruggles of Massachusetts, who had commanded a brigade in the late French War, presided.

This congress protested that the colonies could only be taxed by their own representatives in the colonial assemblies; claimed the inherent right of trial by jury; and declared the Stamp Act to have a tendency to subvert the rights and liberties of the colonies.

The sessions were secret, and the journal printed later in extremely meager in the details of their proceedings. They were in session fourteen days, and sent forth three able State papers—a "Declaration of Rights," the authorship of which has been ascribed to John Cruger, of New York, and also to John Dickinson, of Pennsylvania; a "Memorial to both Houses of Parliament," by Robert R. Livingston, of New York; and a "Petition to the King," written by James Otis of Massachusetts.

The proceedings of this Stamp Act Congress were approved and signed by twenty-five of the delegates, only Timothy Ruggles, of Massachusetts, and Robert Ogden, of New Jersey, dissenting; the latter two espoused the cause of the crown in the great struggle that ensued.

On the arrival of the first shipment of stamps, all the vessels in New York harbor lowered their colors to signify "mourning, lamentation and woe." On October 31, the "New York Gazette" was printed with black head and foot lines, and contained "a funeral lamentation on the death of Liberty, who finally expires on the thirty-first of October, in the year of our Lord, MDCCLXV., and of our Slavery 1."

Stamp distributors for their sale were appointed. James McEvers had been chosen the agent for New York. The Sons of Liberty demanded his resignation, and Governor Colden promised him protection, but when the stamps arrived McEvers was so alarmed by the manifestation of opposition that he refused to receive them, and they were taken into the fort for safety.

The people were exasperated by the arrival of the stamps and appeared in large numbers before the fort, which was also the residence of the venerable Colden, and demanded the delivery of the stamps to them. A refusal was answered by defiant shouts by the Sons of Liberty, who were not in the least dismayed by the presence of British ships of war in the harbor.

An orderly procession was formed. It soon became a roaring mob. Half an hour after the governor's refusal he was burned in effigy. The mob dragged Colden's fine coach to the open space in front of the fort and burned it. Other excesses were committed by the excited populace.

November 1 was Friday—a truly "Black Friday" in America. It was ushered in by the tolling of bells and the display of flags at half-mast, as if a national calamity had occurred. Minute-guns were fired. There were orations and sermons adapted to the occasion.

Everywhere throughout the several colonies there were demonstrations of public sentiment against the act, and nowhere could be found any officials courageous enough to attempt to enforce it. There was neither violence nor disorder.

In New York the obnoxious act was painted with a skull and cross-bones, instead of the royal arms, and contemptuously paraded through the streets under the title of "England's Folly and America's Gain."

Nine Reasons Why Newspapers Ask Advertisers for "Early Copy"

THE ADVERTISER IS UNFAIR TO HIMSELF When He Habitually Sends His Display Advertising Copy to the Newspaper Office on the Day the Ad is to be Printed

WHAT EARLY COPY MEANS	WHAT LATE COPY MEANS
1—Good Position	1—Risk of Poor Position
2—No Errors	2—Risk of Typographical Errors
3—Time for Correction	3—No Opportunity for Corrections
4—Good Typography	4—Risk of Poor Typography
5—Prompt Delivery to Reader	5—Risk of Late Delivery
6—Fair to Mechanical Staff	6—Unfair Physical Strain
7—Advertisement Well Written	7—Advertisement Hurriedly Written
8—Advertisement Inserted	8—Risk of Omission
9—Overhead Normal	9—Often Cause of Rate Increase

While a newspaper is a marvel of mechanical efficiency, there are limits on what can be done by a given force of printers, stereotypers, pressmen and mailers in a short crowded period of stress.

There is plenty of time to give every advertiser good service every day in the week when early copy is sent in. But to set every advertisement in the last minute of rush is impossible, even with a force five times as large.

The Freeman believes that its advertisers desire to be fair to the printers, stereotypers, pressmen and mailers who serve them as well as to be fair to themselves.

All Display Advertising Copy should be in the Freeman Office at least 24 hours before publication. Larger ads and those to be inserted on rush days should be received at least 48 hours in advance.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 562 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

You Wouldn't Permit This!

Yet, it's just as dangerous to children's health to allow them to suffer "indoor exposure"—one room too hot, another too cold.

Protect them, inside the home as well as outdoors. Install a radiator heating plant, to keep every room evenly warm.

Our experience can be used to profitable advantage by you in planning modern home heating.

A short hour before the entertainment the first call for talent for the minstrel show will be made. A special invitation is made to members of the former Legion minstrel troupe, such as Thomas P. Dolan, Thomas M[illegible], William G. Newkirk, James R. Palen, Peter Jordan, Lester C. Elmendorf, Ralph Glendenning, Harry Giles, John Palisi, Thomas F. Coughlin, J. Little girl?

"That finishes my tale," said the cat when he backed into the lawn mower.

Every knock is a boost but few of us care to be boosted thatway.

Women—diamonds from fish.

They were standing on the top landing of the Woolworth Tower, leaning far over the rail and looking down upon Broadway.

"Why, there's my uncle down there," she cried in excitement, "but he looks like an ant!"

Before trying to keep up with the parade it is well to find out who is in the parade.

There are two kinds of people in the world, those who always carry an umbrella, and those who don't.

The Day's Worst Joke: When a man gets hilarious on varnish or embalming fluid, it may be said he is the victim of a substi-toot.

Just let any girl fall in love with a man and hear him tell how sensible she is.

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

HOWE GETS ENCOURAGEMENT.

Camp of the United Colonies, Cambridge, Mass., March 9, 1776.—It is apparent that General Washington is not yet fully convinced that General Howe is preparing to evacuate Boston with the entire British army. There are circumstances corroborating the report that the British are already beginning to embark, but Washington refuses to take anything for granted. His attitude appears to be that he will never be sure what Howe is planning to do until it is actually done.

He is therefore making careful plans to encourage His Majesty's general to move on. This encouragement takes the form of another battery near the water on Dorchester Neck, to serve as a hint to the British shipping, or, as the general expresses it, "with a design of acting as the circumstances may require."

The first project for this battery went wrong this evening, however, because an American sentinel foolishly lighted a fire near Nook's Hill where the battery was planned and the fire was seen by a British sentinel and a bombardment was started which engaged the entire attention of the Americans for the remainder of the evening. Five Americans were killed and more than 800 shots fired.

As still further encouragement for Howe to lose no time in leaving, Washington has planned some work for his navy. He is providing for every possibility. "It being agreed on all hands that there is no possibility of stopping them in case they determine to go," he reported to Congress today, "I shall order look-outs to be kept upon all the headlands, to discover their movements and course, and moreover direct Commodore Manley and his little squadron to do their part as well for the same purpose as for picking up any of their vessels that may chance to depart from their convoy."

While thus engaged with a bombardment on land, his own camp and fortifications being the target of the enemy cannon, with the direction of his naval force, and with the extension of his own lines on Dorchester Point, the commander-in-chief was today as deeply concerned as ever for the relief of the army in Canada, and looking forward to the task confronting him in the defense of New York.

PRETTY MISS SNAKE

"Hiss, hiss, hello, hello," said the other snakes, and the new snake said, "Hiss, hiss, hello, hello."

"What is your name?" they asked her.

And she answered:

"I am pretty Miss Snake."

"At least that is what my friends and family call me. I am really named Miss Green Snake, or Miss Grass Snake.

"All of those names will do for me."

"You're a nice young creature," the other snakes hissed.

"We admire you.

"We think you are very lovely in your pretty green suit. It is so refreshing and pleasant a color."

"Ah, yes," said Miss Snake, "I think it is a nice color, too.

"We have all thought well of it—all of our family.

"But the children are never as gayly dressed as the grown-up snakes.

"They wear a paler shade of green, a yellowish shade. It wouldn't do for them to dress up as much as their elders."

"It wouldn't do at all," agreed the other snakes.

"I am gentle as can be," said Miss Green Snake.

"I can be handled and I will not bite.

"I can be stroked and I won't do a thing that is cross or cranky.

"I am as nice as can be, and if anyone says that he is afraid of snakes, let him see me and talk to me and hold me.

"Then he will see that snakes aren't all bad by any manner of means.

"In fact, there are far more good snakes than bad ones. Far more.

"They do good deeds, too, and help farmers and gardeners and keepers of orchards.

"There are so many nice ones, and it is easy just to find out the bad ones and then like all other snakes!"

"That's the idea," said the other snakes, "and you are a great help to the name of snakes, for you help to make snakes well liked."

"I Am as Nice as Can Be."

"But there is one thing about which I am very fussy," said Miss Green Snake.

"And what is that, pray tell," asked the other snakes.

"I am very fond of insects of all kinds," said Miss Green Snake.

"I won't eat things which other snakes will sometimes eat, such as little toads and frogs.

"Insects are what I like and enjoy and relish."

"Are all your family the same way?" asked the snakes.

"Or are you the only one who is so fussy about your food?"

"We're all the same way," said Miss Green Snake, "but I think it is fair enough to ask for certain food when we're so nice and gentle about everything else.

"Then the food that we eat, too, is not wanted much by others and it helps people a great deal. We're of great help to them.

"We don't get angry even if we're given the wrong kind of food.

"We just won't eat it, that's all."

"You certainly have a good disposition," said the other snakes admiringly.

"It comes from belonging to my family," said Miss Green Snake.

"I have such a good Snake example always before me. And that's a great help, snakes, a great, great help."

"We're sure it must be," they hissed.

Maturing

The kindly old party stopped and inquired, "What's your little brother crying for?"

Willie scratched his head. "I don't know," he confessed.

Willie smiled. "I don't know exactly," was the reply, "but thank goodness, he will soon be old enough to slap!"

Sufficient and Enough

"Jimmy," said the teacher, "is there any difference between the words 'sufficient' and 'enough?'"

"Yes, ma'm," replied the youngster. "'Sufficient' is when mother thinks I have had enough pie, and 'enough' is when I think that I have eaten sufficient."

MILLIAMETER USEFUL INSTRUMENT.

Give Check on B Battery Consumption, Condition of Tubes, Etc.

F. M. Russell

Today the advanced radio fan uses all kinds of delicate measuring instruments and appuratus and the milliameter is now a regular part of his equipment. Its use is strongly recommended if you wish to secure the utmost efficiency from your receiver. It gives all kind of valuable information about the way your set is functioning, amount of B battery current being consumed, etc.

You can install the milliameter permanently on your panel or have it in a portable case with two long leads coming from it. If installed on the panel it can be wired up in series between the negative B battery and the set. In other words the lead from the negative terminal on the B battery goes to the negative post on the milliameter, and the lead from the plus side of the milliameter goes to the negative B post on the set. If you wish so you can install a switch in the circuit to cut the milliameter out, but it is better to leave it permanently installed.

With the milliameter in the circuit you have before your eyes at all times the exact amount of plate current being consumed by your B battery. You can see at once what happens when you turn your rheostats too high by noting the increase in B battery consumption while you note there is very little increase in volume. You can thus regulate your rheostats so that you are using the smallest possible amount of B battery current consistent with the volume you desire. Unless you have a milliameter you cannot tell how much B battery current you are drawing.

You can also trace some of the causes of distortion with a milliameter. If you have the wrong grid bias, the tubes will work on the wrong part of the curve. This is shown up at once on the milliameter by the deflection of the needle from its normal position. Adjust C and B battery voltages until the milliameter needle shows just a slight movement when a selection is coming through.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE RIDGE-POLE YAMMERKAT.

This pestiferous creature is found in some of the smaller Holland villages, where it perches in large numbers on the house tops and yammers all night long. In the olden days when storks were plentiful, they would not stand for the racket, and the roofs were cleared of the pests every night by raiding storks. The beast is very hard to exterminate, as it has around nineteen lives, although a direct hit from a Dutchman's shoe will knock out seven or eight of them. The yammerkat never eats, so it cannot be starved out.

The creature, as the picture shows, is as thin as a rail, having a matchstick for a body and a spaghetti tail. The head is a single peanut, with split navy bean ears and popcorn nose. Toothpicks answer for the legs and split lima beans for the feet. The different parts are fastened together with chewing gum.

MILTON.

Milton, March 8.—The New York Telephone Company has been installing a new heavy duty cable line from Milton village to the Willow Tree Tea House. Poles have also been set. An increase of business and new telephone users is the reason for this new line.

The Hudson River Fruit Exchange is getting ready to install an oil emulsion manufacturing plant at the crate factory on Landing street. Three tanks, one of 1,000 gallons capacity and two of 500 gallons, have been purchased and unloaded at the factory. The fruit growers here and vicinity will soon be able to obtain their spray material here instead of having to wait for orders to be shipped. The oil emulsion is made from oil, soap and glue. The ingredients are placed in vats and cooked with steam. At the same time they are pumped back and forth from one vat to another until thoroughly emulsified. The decision to make oil emulsion by the Fruit Exchange was made last summer when the directors of the Exchange conferred on the subject and it was decided that it would be a worth while step in offering service to the fruit growing members of the Excange. The plant this is being arranged will have a capacity of about 50 and 60 barrels a day.

The Rev. J. A. Hern attended the hearing on the proposed prohibition enforcement bill before the codes committee in the assembly chambers at Albany last Wednesday.

The Rev. Father Conley of St. Patrick's Church, Newburgh, officiated at the Lenten service at the St. James Church last Friday evening.

Twenty-one new books have been added to the Sarah H. Hallock Free Library.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. M. H. Bell Friday evening of this week. In addition to the regular program the efficiency plan as expressed at the Regional Conference at Poughkeepsie last week will be discussed.

A sawlead of old machinery from the Milton Woolen Mills has been shipped to a buyer in Wisconsin.

J. Westervelt Clarke has started the construction of a new large cold storage plant on his farm which will have a capacity of about 4,000 barrels of fruit. It will be about a third larger than the plant of J. Milo Hegeman. The plant will be 100x32 feet with a 12 foot ceiling.

Percy V. Bunker has been hauling several loads of apples to Thomas Conroy to Highland for shipment by the Central Hudson Steamboat Company to New York.

The Ladies' Needle Craft Society of the First Presbyatrion Church will hold a St. Patrick's Day social at the home of Mrs. Russell Martin on the evening of Wednesday, March 17. There will be a special program offered and a free will offering will be taken for the fund to be used in making repairs on the parsonage. Cars will be at the post office at 7:30 p. m. to take all who have no way of getting to the entertainment. At the meeting last Wednesday several committees were appointed for the fair to be given by the Needle Craft Society in August of this year.

Michael Conroy, who recently purchased the old Milton Woolen Mills building has taken out two old engines and three crust boilers and will sell them as junk. One of the boilers has a fly wheel nine feet in diameter attached to it.

Daniel Collins, one of our fruit growers, has been receiving as high as $5 a barrel for apples he has shipped.

George Hallock, who has been at St. Luke's Hospital since Christmas for treatment of a fractured hip, is again at his home and able to get around with the aid of crutches. His many friends are glad to see him home again and hope for his speedy recovery.

Tuesday evening, March 9, the Maids and Matrons and the Men's Club will hold their monthly meetings at the Community House.

Wednesday afternoon, March 10, the Melody Club will hold its monthly meeting.

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, March 8.—The Ladies' Aid Society will have an all day sewing at the home of Mrs. Harry Ellsworth on Thursday, March 11. All the ladies of the congregation are invited to come and bring thimbles, needles and lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Terpening were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellsworth.

Although the day was stormy and bad walking there was quite a number present at the communion service on Sunday and three new members were received in the church, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Vining and Charles Schwab.

Its Boundaries Restricted

Oceania or Oceanica was a designation which embraced the land surface which remained after apportioning the continents of Eurasia, Africa and the Americas. The term covered Australia, the Indian archipelago and the Pacific islands. After Australasia was set apart as a continent Oceanica was restricted to the Malay archipelago and the islands of the Pacific.

Beautiful Time of Year

Indian summer is a term applied in North America to a short season of pleasant weather which commonly occurs at the end of October or early in November, but for which there is no fixed date. During this period the atmosphere is hazy and dry, the sky is red, the temperature is mild and rain is absent for an unusual length of time.

Seumas M'Manus Here March 17

Great interest is being shown in the Irish lecture to be given by Seumas MacManus at the Knights of Columbus Auditorium on St Patrick's Night, March 17, under the auspices of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus.

This is the first appearance of the Irish writer and lecturer in these parts and he comes to Kingston with a very good record. MacManus was the son of one of the small farmers among the Donegal hills and worked as did the rest of the boys in the potato ridge and the corn field. At the social entertainments, the young man absorbed the humor and pathos of Irish life and took part in all the discussions, which were carried on by the older folk. At the age of eighteen his ability was recognized and he became the mountain-schoolmaster. Besides inducting the youth into the mysteries of the alphabet, MacManus began writing poetry for Dublin papers and again his rise in this field was forecast.

Upon his journey to America some years ago, he found the field still larger and his books, plentiful stories in all the well-known magazines and his presence on the lecture platform, attests to the record he has made.

The Irish poet is still a native of Donegal and upon his return from a lecture tour in America he is besieged in the market for information concerning relatives. In the course of his tours he unearths sometimes, countrymen and women from his native parish, who after long years of absence and silence had become lost to their kith and kin at home.

Flight Again Postponed.

Dayton, O., March 9.—Lieutenant John A. Macready's second attempt this year to regain the world's altitude record, scheduled for 9 a. m. today was postponed until noon when mechanics at McCook field failed in their efforts to have the improved supercharger installed for the flight on scheduled time. The supercharger was off the engine, Macready said.

Nine More Cases Of Measles Here

Nine more cases of measles were reported to the board of health, making a total of twenty-nine cases in the city at the present time. All of the cases originated from one unreported case.

Parents whose children have never had the measles would do well to keep the children away from crowds so that they will not come into contact with other children afflicted with the disease.

Among the twenty-nine cases reported are several adults.

Aldermen Are Riding in Busses

Famous "Greek Fire"

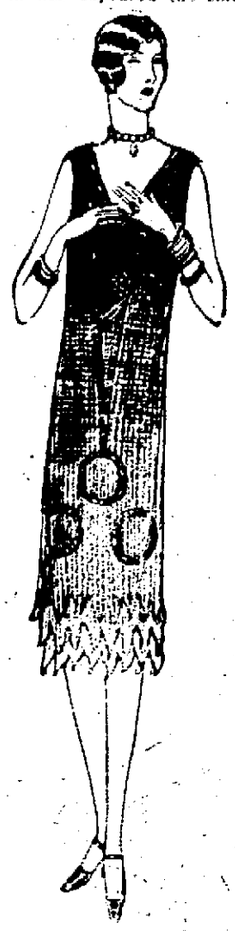
The fire invented and used by Callinicus in 668 A. D. to destroy the ships of the invading Saracens was composed of naphtha or liquid bitumen mixed with sulphur and pitch procured from Greek fir trees. Water, instead of extinguishing, quickened this agent, which the Greeks controlled with sand, wine and vinegar. The secret was maintained by the Greeks for 400 years.

Fletcher Gown Shop

SPANGLES AND SEQUINS ADD FURTHER SPARKLE TO THE MODE.

Apparently, to reconcile the rank and file to do without a beaded gown, it has been given up as a hopeless task. There have been no truly satisfactory substitutes. Since the way and means of beading can go on apparently with endless variations why try to oust anything as altogether satisfying as the beaded gown.

Sequins or spangles are one of the newer types which despite some prejudice must be acknowledged to have arrived. The allover sequin gown flashes by occasionally on dance floors, but it is perhaps the plainer satin, paillette more discreetly which has captured the smart set.



The Evening Frock of Fuchsia Color Chiffon, the Lower Tiers in Degrade Effect, Has Crystals and Rhinestones Outlining the V-Shaped Decolletage and Circular Designs.

Godets of sequins, flounces of sequins, motifs, futuristic in inspiration, worked out in scintillating spangles will have distinct charm. All that seems to be demanded is that beads should be used in new and interesting ways. Chanel's chiffon with its series of small narrow tiers each one banded with beads is perhaps the most frequently encountered evening dress of the winter. One finds it in many colors, but most often in white. There is also a predisposition toward circular skirted chiffons which have a row of beaded bowknots usually in a row down the front of the skirt and continuing to the edge of the decollete. The bowknot motif is among the conspicuously popular ones of the season. One finds of course fewer allover beaded effects, but there are some. For one thing let us give thanks, beads are kept strictly for after six, for we take our glitter and glare in metal clothes and in little lozengers of metal, often sprinkled on jersey even. It really seems taking the world by and large that national taste has improved, and that Americans are less given to the sin of overdressing.

Magnetism

The bureau of standards says that magnetism is a condition and not a thing. When you stretch an elastic band its condition is changed, but you do not add anything to it. When released the elastic band returns to its former condition. The electric current in the winding of an electromagnet causes a change in condition of the space near it. When the current stops the space returns to its original condition. It is not proper, therefore, to say that the magnetism goes anywhere.

Ornamental Boots Are in Limelight

Decorated Footwear Is Indorsed by Women of Paris Stage.

The Paris bottiers are already launching their spring and summer campaign, and it is evident that there will be a strong effort to popularize the ornamental shoe. Simple shoes, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, which have been most synonymous with short skirts, have basked long enough in the spotlight, according to the French bootmakers, and a trend toward unique and unusual footwear is already under way.

For Riviera sojourners Hellstern is making evening footwear in black satin, trimmed with pink, in gold and silver tinsel brocades, often combined with colored kid, and in satin of various shades of brown arranged so as to grade from light to dark—a novelty into the making of which blond kid also enters. Perugia favors orchid and silver brocade, pastel shades in kid and hand-painted satin. Julienne, the woman shoemaker, places her faith in ruby red satin with plaits running the length of the shoe, as well as in cocoa, cinnamon and light sandstone brocade with a cubist design, combined with plain sandstone colored satin and ornamented with translucent sandstones—amber in color and flecked with gold, these latter forming a button.

The stage provides another fertile background for ornate footwear and leading French actresses are exploiting the most novel types of shoes. Quite a sensation was created recently when one of the most charming actresses of the Ambigu theater appeared in a pair of the new enameled shoes which are being made by Hellstern. The process of enameling is said to be a secret one. The lady's footwear was enameled gold and white, entirely on kid with the exception of the straps of black patent, on which was an enameling of golden flowers. The angles of the black cubic heels were emphasized with lines of gold.

Some very striking new shoes are to be seen at the Theatre de Paris, and one prominent actress as a young sportswoman wears oxfords of red box calf with lizard toe caps and two narrow bands of lizard skin within a centimeter of the collar.

Some telling combinations of colors are being featured by another actress at the Theater Francais. In one act she appears in gray kid with a very large tab attached by three blue enameled buttons. Over the instep is an edging of blue, while blue lines ornament the gray heels. Her evening shoes in another act are partly blond kid, partly chestnut doeskin, with a blond tortoise shell buckle on the vamp.

Belts Are Decorative; Trimmed With Ornaments

Belts are smartly decorative this season, as may be seen by the one above. Many are hand-cut and trimmed with appropriate metal ornaments.

Rose Colors Promised Favorites for Spring

The piquant contrast the fashions of this particular season afford makes it one of the most interesting periods of the year. Side by side with the winter modes that have survived are resort fashions that have the charm of novelty and a certain appeal that is due as much as anything else to their clear, fresh colorings.

The early prediction that spring would be a season of light shades is borne out in the models introduced for the South. Fashion apparently will look upon the world through rose-colored glasses, for the shades of rose both in the beige tones and pink are much in evidence throughout the entire spring collection.

For street wear the varied tones of bois de rose are exploited both in costumes fashioned of silk and those developed in the new light woolens. These last are unusually handsome and are chosen for smart travel costumes whose straight lines are a contrast to the flared effects which hold sway during the winter.

Velveteen and Jersey

Velveteen and jersey are combined very delightfully in sports clothes. Usually the velvet is darker in tone than the jersey.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 9.—A four per cent call money rate, favorable industrial and railroad reports and the inauguration or increase of dividends on well-known manufacturing company stocks failed to stimulate very much interest in speculative stocks today. The trend of prices was generally higher.

Interest centered on the meeting of the directors of the Chrysler Corporation and their probable action on the dividend for the common stock. Good buying of the stock followed the announcement of the $3 rate.

Atlantic Coast Line sold up five points to 221; Delaware & Hudson rose ten points to 165 in active trading; Kansas City Southern and Texas & Pacific moved up two points.

The independent steels, equipments and utilities sold higher, while the oils were irregular. General petroleum was the outstanding stock in that group, with a three-point advance to above 57.

Trading was unusually dull in the second, third and fourth hours and the total sales up to one o'clock were only 750,000 shares, or at the rate of 1,250,000 shares for a full session. The exchange markets were steady, with francs rebounding five points to 3.66 cents on constructive political news from France.

"Flu" Situation Calls for Action

On the Part of the Public to Prevent It From Spreading—Prospects of Epidemic Somewhat Remote, Says Surgeon General.

Washington, March 9.—While there are an unusually large number of "flu" and pneumonia cases throughout the country the situation does not approach in seriousness the nation-wide epidemic that engulfed the country during the war years of 1917-18. Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummings, of the United States Public Health Service said today.

With the winter season nearly ended the prospect of the "flu" reaching an epidemic is somewhat remote, Cummings said.

"Unquestionably there is a great deal of "flu" in many sections of the country, but in most cases it is of a mild type and readily yields to treatment," Cummings said. "Pneumonia is also prevalent in many places and is frequently fatal.

"While reports to the public health service on the prevalence of 'flu' are somewhat fragmentary, because in many places this disease is not a reportable one, we do know there are a lot of such cases, but there is little likelihood of a nation-wide epidemic.

Cummings declared, however, that the situation calls for intelligent co-operation on the part of the public. Overcrowding, he said, was one of the most potent methods of spreading influenza.

CORNELL HOSE APPRECIATES GIFT OF AIR CUSHION

Mark Backarach, president of Cornell Hose Company, has presented paid firemen of that company with an air cushion rubber mat which was placed at the foot of the slide pole which runs between the sleeping quarters and the lower floor where the fire apparatus is kept. These mats are used in all fire stations in the large cities and do away with the danger of sprained ankles and fallen arches caused when firemen slide down the pole in answer to an alarm and striking the hard concrete floor which is at the base of these poles. The firemen of this company are loud in their praise of President Backarach for the generous gift he has bestowed upon them.

FIRE STARTED IN STOVE SET FIRE TO THE HOUSE

Samuel D. Drafman and his family were just moving into the two story frame dwelling owned by Peter Misasi at 172 Tremper avenue on Monday afternoon and had started a fire in the kitchen range when the wainscoting back of the stove caught fire and the flames spread up the side of the room to the floor timbers on the second floor, and then worked their way across and up into the siding into the attic. The fire department was called by an alarm from Box 62 at 4 o'clock and prevented a further spread of the flames. The fire was brought under control by the use of chemicals and the damage will not prove heavy.

IMPROVEMENT MADE IN MILK MACHINES

The present-day milking machines are such an improvement over the old-time machines that they may now be considered beyond the experimental stage. When first put on the market, they naturally had a number of serious imperfections. These have been almost entirely overcome by the inventive ingenuity of man, so that today it may safely be said that the most modern of them are a success.

The two chief stumbling blocks were keeping the machine clean and avoiding injury to the udder of the cow. It is true that in the hands of a careless operator they are still subject to criticism along these lines, but it is the fault of the operator, and not of the machine. It will no doubt always require more intelligence and judgment to operate them than is generally displayed by a large percentage of our hand-milkers.

It would be difficult to foretell what the future has in store for the dairyman with the milking machine to do his milking. Nevertheless, the most difficult problem, that of hired help, should be at least partially solved. If there is any one drawback to dairy farming, it is this one of keeping competent and reliable help. All other irksome farm operations seem to have been benefited by mechanical invention, but milking, the most despised of them all, seems either to have been neglected, or to have been the more difficult to solve. Men hate the monotony and regularity of hand-milking. Perhaps mechanical milking should prove more popular, as the amount of time and physical exertion is greatly decreased. Already a great many have been installed in some of our best dairies, and their success there is being watched with much interest by farmer dairymen.—H. E. Dvorachek, Colorado Agricultural College.

Little Extra Grain Will Give Increased Returns

A little thought to the feeding of fall-freshened cows will be well repaid in increased returns. Too many cows freshen in poor condition and cannot be expected to yield a good return. To begin with, a dry period of at least six weeks is essential to enable the cow to build a reserve. How the cow is fed during this interval will largely determine her production after she freshens. A little extra grain at this time means dividends later. Freshening in good flesh the cow starts her lactation at a big advantage.

Production can be held up with economy by supplementing pasture with ground barley, equal parts ground oats and corn chop. This grain should be fed at the rate of one to five pounds of milk as long as the pasture is good. Don't expect the milk flow to increase materially, but it will hold up over a much longer period of time when prices are good, and therefore more than pay for the grain consumed.

Cost of Wintering Young Heifer Varies Greatly

The feed required in raising as well as the cost of this and other items of expense will vary considerably with different localities. In winter there is no better ration than legume hay, silage and sufficient grain to keep them thrifty and growing vigorously, without becoming too fat. The ration should supply plenty of protein and hence unless a liberal amount of good clover or alfalfa hay is fed, a grain allowance in this element should be supplied. Heifers over ten months of age, especially of the larger breeds, may make satisfactory gains on silage and legume hay alone if of good quality. Results of tests conducted at experiment stations give yearling heifers as requiring from 700 to 900 pounds of hay along with skim milk and other feeds necessary to keep the animals in a growing thrifty condition. In regard to the cost of wintering the heifers this will vary according to the conditions in the neighborhood, such as quantity and costs of feeds and other factors.

Dairy Facts

Regularity in feeding and milking is essential to profitable dairying.

• • •

Many an epidemic of diphtheria, scarlet fever, and typhoid fever has been traced to a case of illness on the dairy farm.

• • •

The various dairy utensils used by the dairyman are probably one of the most important sources of the bacterial contamination of milk.

• • •

Adequate ventilation removes foul air, removes excessive moisture and furnishes a supply of pure, fresh air. All three are vital to the welfare of the herd.

• • •

In order to do its work properly, the cream separator must be level and must be securely fastened to its foundation, the bearings must be well lubricated with the right kind of oil, and no accumulation of dirt can be permitted to collect on the working parts.

France Again Turns to Briand

M. Aristide Briand Accepts Task of Re-forming Cabinet Provisionally—Definite Answer Tonight.

Paris, March 9.—For the tenth time in its history, France again turned to M. Aristide Briand today to lead the government out of political chaos.

President Domergue summoned Briand, the veteran politician and nine times Premier and asked him to re-form a cabinet, notwithstanding the defeat which was administered to him on Saturday forcing his resignation.

Briand, after discussing the situation with the president, accepted the task of forming a cabinet provisionally.

Briand told the president that he would give a definite answer at 9 o'clock tonight, after he had consulted his friends.

"If I re-form a cabinet I will make a minimum of changes," he said.

KINGSTON CANDY CO., INC., ENLARGES ITS BUSINESS

The Kingston Candy Co., Inc., of 29 Mill street, has applied for permission to increase its capital stock. D. Navy, the president, announces this step was necessary in view of the corporation's plan to widen the scope of its business, as well as the territory covered.

The Kingston Candy Co., Inc., has been appointed selling agent for Park & Tilford for Dutchess county because of its splendid sales record in its previous territory. The territory now covered by the Kingston Candy Co., Inc., includes Ulster, Greene, Dutchess, Columbia and Delaware counties.

At the same time it was ascertained that Maurice H. Friedman, fur dealer, has become the treasurer of the Kingston Candy Co., Inc.

Starting on a shoe string in 1919 at 63 Broadway, the business rapidly increased so that it became necessary to move to larger quarters at 59 Broadway in February, 1920, when the business was incorporated. Although it was thought that these quarters would be large enough for many years, it was only three years when another change was made necessary, and the company removed to its spacious quarters at 29 Mill street, which it now occupies.

There is no question that the firm will continue to make headway under the able management of its president, Mr. Navy, and its new treasurer, Mr. Friedman.

Stories as Told Place Parrots in New Role

To illustrate his belief in the future life of animals, Mr. Elliott O'Donnell recently told the following stories to the London Times:

A lady living in Hampstead had a parrot of which she was very fond. One of her servants in a fit of rage killed it. The following day the lady was at a party, and she noticed that one of the guests, a gentleman and a stranger to her, was staring at her. Later on he was introduced, and he said to her: "Do you know why I was staring at you? It was because I saw a parrot sitting on the arm of your chair and after a while vanish." The gentleman then described the parrot he had seen, and convinced the lady that it was the ghost of her killed pet.

Mr. O'Donnell next referred to a parrot belonging to an undertaker who had the bird for 28 years. One day it remarked to him, "You are going to die soon," and a few hours afterward the bird itself died. Two or three days later the undertaker died. At the inquest held on him, reference was made to this incident, and the query was raised, "Do parrots understand and are they clairvoyant?"

Cold Welcome Given to Cargo of Bananas

John S. Mackintosh, who died in Washington recently, was for almost fifty years an exporter in Boston, operating a line of clipper ships. With every ship came some curiosity. One day a ship returned from Central America, and the master showed Mackintosh an elongated yellow fruit that grew in clusters.

Mackintosh regarded it warily; the ship was half-full of such cargo, and his Scotch prudence was aroused. Even after he had eaten one and pronounced it delicious, he was not certain they could be sold.

"What do you call them?" he inquired of the skipper.

"The natives call them bananas," the sailor answered.

Mackintosh put them up for sale, and a few curiosity seekers bought a bunch or so. He harangued their quality and tried to impress upon the Bostonians the deliciousness of the fruit. But his venture failed.

The late Nebuchadnezzar, ancient king of Babylon, who saw the famous handwriting on the wall, was no modest violet. A bit of autobiography he had inscribed on a cylinder 2,500 years ago and securely sealed in the wall of an ancient temple for posterity to dig up and read, now reposes in the Carnegie museum at Pittsburgh. Several of the opening paragraphs are gems of modest praise. He goes on to say: "I am Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, the great, the mighty, the favorite of Marduk (Babylonian God), the ruler who knows no weariness." Then he expatiates at great length on what a builder of temples and walls, "mountain high," canals and other structures he is, and adds, "may the wise men after me, read of all my works which I have written upon the tablet." Nebuchadnezzar was taking no chances of posterity neglecting to give him credit where credit was due.—Capper's Weekly.

The funeral of Margaret Van Keuren, wife of former Surrogate Walter N. Gill, who died suddenly Sunday morning, will be held from the late residence, No. 51 Abruyn street, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery. Mrs. Gill has been in poor health for some years and death came from an unexpected cause, heart failure. She was a daughter of the late William and Jane Dempsey Van Keuren. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Walter H. and H. LeRoy Gill, a daughter, Miss Llewellyna Gill of Glens Falls, and a sister, Miss Gertrude Van Keuren, of this city. Mrs. Gill had been a lifelong resident of Kingston and was a devoted member of the Congregational Church on Abruyn street and an active member of the Sunday school. With her passing is removed the last member living in this locality of an old historic family, a family holding one of the original grants of land, the Hardenbergh Patent, also a family holding positions of trust during Revolutionary and pre-Revolutionary days. Mrs. LeFever was born at Wawarsing, a daughter of the late A. D. W. and Rachel Ostrander Hardenbergh. She was twice married. Her first husband was James E. McCausland of Kingston. To them was born a daughter, Rachel, now Mrs. Henry Horton who survives her and who was with her during her illness of a week's duration. Her second marriage to Newton LeFever, deceased, a well known business man of that vicinity, brought her once more to live in the locality of her girlhood home at Napanoch. Later Mr. and Mrs. LeFever became residents for a long period of Ellenville, at "Maplewood." For several winters Mrs. LeFever has made her home in Kingston. A cheerful, home-loving, devoted mother and wife, a woman interested in the welfare of the community and a devoted member of the Dutch Reformed Church, she was a member of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., the Ellenville Musical Club and Woman's Clubs. Many will miss her words of encouragement, her smiling, happy personality. Friends paid the last tribute to Mrs. LeFever at her home on Maple avenue Sunday afternoon when her pastor, the Rev. W. S. Maines, compared her life to a tale which is told, the memory of which is one of helpfulness and cheer. The brief service at Fantinekill was conducted by the Rev. C. M. Seiple who was her pastor during her residence at Napanoch. Other surviving relatives besides her daughter are Mrs. Blandina B. Brodhead and Mrs. Mary J. Russell, both sisters; also John J. Hardenbergh, her brother. Her twin sister, Mrs. George W. DuMond of Kingston, died a few years ago.

Hard Job for Cubs' Manager

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., March 9.—All the hard jobs go to the Irish.

That's been true ever since St. Patrick drove the snakes from the heavenly isle, down through the shoulder-breaking decades of hod carrying until today Manager Joe McCarthy faces the task of making a winning ball club out of the Chicago Cubs.

It was only a few days ago that owner William Wrigley, Jr., brought a very small handful of Major League baseball players and a host of "double A" stars to this sun-baked piece of land and retired to the shade of a eucalyptus tree to watch the Irishman mould much out of not so much.

McCarthy is delivering.

First—He has a ball team which, with Irish luck, will finish in the first division and by a near miracle might fight it out for the top berth.

Second—He is building a team which should bring home the pennant in 1927 or the following year.

Third—He has already made good with Wrigley by inspiring the Cubs with a fighting spirit to make them battle in every game.

With Grover Cleveland Alexander and Tony Kaufman, pitchers, and Hartnett, catcher, as a core, McCarthy is slowly constructing what looks like a winning club.

In the infield are Grimm at first, Adams at second, Shannon, shortstop and Freigau at third. Shannon is up from Louisville and appears a cinch to stay. Tolson at first, Cooney at second, Beck at short and Michaels at third, make up the second infield. Cooney was with St. Louis and Syracuse.

The Cubs' usual curse of too many left-handed outfielders are south-paws and very soon McCarthy must solve this problem.

The Cubs' pitchers are as sunshine after Catalina fog.

Alexander and Kaufmann are heralded as never looking better; Charlie Root and Bob Osborn look good, while Blake has been playing winter baseball and is fit now. Bush, Cooper and Milstead are rounding into shape.

Clarkson Going Strong.

Sarasota, Fla., March 9.—The sensation of the Giants' camp today was Walter Clarkson, a right-handed pitcher from the Norfolk Club of the Virginia League. Pitching four innings against the University of Florida team yesterday, he fanned eight men and only one collegian reached first base. This was the result of an error.

Stribling Meets Tunney Friday

New York, March 9.—According to professional assurances from the source of supply, Gene Tunney and Young Stribling really intend to step those ten, no-decision rounds at Miami, Florida, Friday night, thereby fooling some of the people all of the time. Altogether confounded by the transaction, many of the local boys have retired temporarily from public life, the better to seek a four-letter word, meaning—what's the answer?

It seems that there is none. A Tunney-Stribling bout, according to the best of local minds, should be a Broadway attraction, and, at that, the first six months would be the hardest if anyone tried to match them for the Garden.

Yet, with everything to lose and little to gain, they sign the papers for this one like a couple of the boys from the corner store engage in a private fight.

According to Broadway, it may be semi-private, at that, the idea being that a good fight is a total loss outside New York, which is the old wintergreen. Anyhow, you can't prove it by the promoter, Jess Baugh, whose advance billing calls for a stadium with a 30,000 capacity and a gate of $300,000, no less. That is very serious money, even if, as alleged, the principals will get $50,000 each, a statement that should be shaken well before taking.

In fact, the entire proposition smacks of the extraordinary. Here we have a couple of the leading heavyweights fighting for no reason at all, one of them being well-megaphoned for the first shot at Dempsey. It isn't necessary for Tunney to climb over Stribling for that chance. Yet he gratuitously decides to do it.

Elks' Smoker Scored Big Hit

Vince Hart of East Kingston again displayed his ability as a boxer Monday evening, at the Elks' Club in his bout with Frenchy Dewig. Hart had the better of the match, scoring a number of clear knockdowns during the four rounds.

In the final contest which brought together Joe Vosdick and Johnny Carpino of this city, the bout lasted the six rounds. Both boys worked steady and exhibited more skill than on their previous meeting.

The Fisher-Fay scrap and the Werner-Houlihan bout were very fast as was the Hertica-Winoski affair and the George Fisher-Sargis fight.

The vaudeville acts together with the singing of Tommy Dolan completed the very pleasing program.

JACK DELANEY EASILY BEAT JOE LOHMAN.

New York, March 9.—Disregarding the "jinx" that was supposed to have caused headliners to lose to second raters at the club, Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport, Conn., sensation, knocked out Joe Lohman, Toledo, in the tenth round at the Broadway Arena, Brooklyn, last night.

Delaney was in front in every round and dropped Lohman five times before his seconds tossed in the towel. Lohman twice was saved from a knockout by the bell and took a bad beating.

The appearance of Lohman's wife in his corner just before the towel was thrown in caused many to believe that she influenced the action of his handlers.

Last Night's Fights.

At Albany—Joey Silvers, New York lightweight and Sig Keppen, of Beaver Falls, Pa., fought a draw, 12 rounds; Henry Shaw, New York negro middleweight, won judges' decision over Walter Ketzer, Staten Island, 10 rounds; Harry Ebbets, of Freeport, L. I., won on technical knockout in fifth round over George Williams, of New York; Billy Mastrain, of Schenectady and Edge Ryan, of Troy, fought a draw, four rounds.

Brooklyn—Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., knocked out Joe Lohman, Toledo, tenth round; Al Rood, Brooklyn, got the decision over Frank Raychan, Allentown, Pa., six rounds; Lou Palmer, Columbus, O., got the decision over Abe Rosenberg, New York, four rounds; Murray Gitlitz, New Haven, got the decision over Dan O'Connell, New York, six rounds.

New York—Tony Vaccarelli, New York, got the decision over Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, ten rounds; Al Tripoli, Yonkers, knocked out Alf Lewis, Australia, seventh round.

Has effective way to treat sore muscles.

HOW TO GET RID OF MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Beach Patrolman Advises this Treatment

After exposure to dampness and cold, and after hard exercise, muscles will stiffen up and get lame.

A beach patrolman at Atlantic City writes that he has found this treatment the quickest and most effective way to take out the stiffness and pain: "Just pat on a little of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub. It's the liniment—not the rubbing—that helps. You'll get relief right away. I've tried all sorts of other things, but nothing gets results like Sloan's."

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden pain, it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh, new blood. Quickly and surely it carries off the "fatigue-poisons," takes out stiffness and drives away the aches and pains.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

ST. MARY'S BEAT ST. JOSEPH'S 19-17

The St. Mary's proved too hard a nut for the uptown Saints, the St. Joseph five, to crack, Friday night in the downtown hall as the St. Mary's lads defeated their opponents by a 19 to 17 tally in a hot affair. The losing aggregation led by half time by a lone marker.

Wrestling Match a Draw.

New York, March 9.—Stanislaus Zybszko, the aged Pole and Ivan Puddubny, known as the Russian giant, uncovered little action in their Graeco-Roman wrestling match last night, the bout being called a draw after 2 hours and 5 minutes. Both were on their feet most of the time, Puddubny twice flooring Zybszko but being unable to maintain his holds. It was the second meeting between the pair, the first being awarded to Zbyszko on a foul in London eighteen years ago.

Dodgers to Play Browns.

Clearwater, Fla., March 9.—Manager Wilbert Robinson planned today to put the finishing touches on his team in preparation for tomorrow's exhibition game between the Dodgers and the St. Louis Browns at Tarpon Springs. A great triangular fight is on for the center-field position between Whitey Witt, ex-Yankee; Gus Felix, ex-Brave, and Merwin Jacobson, ex-International leaguer.

McNALLY ALL STARS TO PLAY ST. MARY'S FRIDAY

18 John St., East Kingston, N. Y.
March 8, 1926.

To the Editor of The Freeman.

Sir:

Now that my club, the McNally All Stars, are again booked to play at St. Mary's Friday evening, I want to explain some reasons why to a letter stated in his letter that they played 40 minute games at St. Mary's court. I stated in my letter that all the fans and myself said the original playing time was up before the foul was called that beat us. And I can't see how any player that is in the game can tell what they were doing at the timekeeper's seat. Bruck based his story on what somebody else told him. I certainly would have never put my reason in the papers for getting defeated if I had hadn't seen it myself. If there is any basketball fans in this vicinity who think that they give you a good deal at St. Mary's court, then come down next Friday evening and you will see the biggest mistake you ever saw. The man who referees the game next Friday evening will want to consult Nate Holman on the fine points of the game, or else have a rule book handy, because he will have to explain to my players any fouls he calls.

I will however predict that if we are given a fair deal we will beat St. Mary's team by at least five points, and anybody who may witness the game, will not want for excitement. There will be plenty of that.

I am yours for a neutral referee,
WILLIAM T. McNALLY,
Manager McNally All Stars.
